

Abstract of Disclosure

A mounting structure for a circular saw blade uses a pair of washers for clamping the saw blade on a spindle. One washer has a saw blade clamping surface and a flange for passing the central hole of the saw blade. The saw 5 blade opening has a complementary opening formed in such a manner that the saw blade can only be clamped on the spindle in which the cutting edges of the blade are facing in the correct direction of rotation.